Advantages

i. Easy Formation

A Government company can be easily formed under the Companies, Act, just by an executive decision of the government.

ii. Internal Autonomy

A government company can manage its affairs independently. It is relatively free from ministerial control and political interference, in its day-to-day functioning.

iii. Private Participation

Through Government company device, the government can avail of the management skills, technical know-how and expertise of the private sector and foreign countries. For example, the Hindustan Steel Limited has obtained technical and financial assistance from the U.S.S.R., West Germany and the U.K. for its steel plants at Bhilai, Rourkela and Durgapur.

iv. Easy to Alter

Objectives and powers of the Government Company can be changed by simply altering the Memorandum of Association of the company, without seeking the approval of the Parliament.

v. Discipline

The Government Company is subject to provisions of the Companies Act; which keeps the management of the company active, alert and disciplined.

vi. Professional Management

A Government company can employ professionally qualified managers; because it has its own personnel policies.

vii. Public Accountability

The Annual Report of a Government company is presented to the Parliament/ State Legislature. These reports can be discussed and debated there.

Disadvantages

i. Board of Directors Packed with 'Yes-Men'

On the Board of Directors of a government company, there are Government appointed directors (Government being the major shareholder); who are 'yes-men' of the Government. They are unable to run the company, in a businesslike manner.
