Authorised Signatory

Importer has to fill in ANF 2A form and grant of e-LEC and submit all documents required in this regard online. IEC will be issued.

Importer has to submit the copy of IEC to customs authorities at the time of clearance of goods. The second copy of IEC is used to obtain foreign exchange from RBI.

2. Trade Enquiry

Having obtained IEC, the intending importer has to make enquiry from exporter or his agents. Importer makes request by e-mail or postal mail to supply the details given below.

a. Specification of goods like size, design, quality etc.,
b. Quantity goods available
c. Price per unit
d. Terms of shipping
e. Terms of payments i.e. Letter of credit Documents against Acceptance (D/A)or Documents against Payment (D/P)
f. Probable delivery time
g. Validity of offer period

Importer responds to enquiry by sending proforma invoice

3. Obtaining Foreign Exchange

Since importer has to settle import bills in foreign currency, he has to obtain foreign exchange. Importer has to provide IEC code in the form supplied by authorized dealer to get foreign exchange.. The importer has to submit an application along with necessary documents to the Exchange Control Department of RBI. After scrutinising the said application, the Reserve Bank of India will sanction the release of foreign exchange.

4. Placing an Indent Order

Importer places an order either directly or through an indent houses. The indent contains the details like type of goods, design of goods, price, quantity, grade, packing instructions, insurance, delivery mode, desired delivery period, mode of period, mode of shipment, etc.,

5. Opening Letter of Credit(L/C)

Where foreign exporter does not know Indian importer, he may like to ensure the creditworthiness of the unknown importer. In such a case, exporter may advise the importer to arrange for letter of credit in his favour..Letter of credit is a document under which issuing bank undertakes to make payment on behalf of the importer or to the order of importer in exchange for specified documents from exporters bank. The letter
