(i) Creditors and financial institutions

Suppliers of goods and services, commercial banks, public deposit holders and debentureholders are included in this category. They are interested in knowing the liquidity position and repaying capacity of the business to ensure the safety of getting the amount due to them or interest and the principal amount.

(ii) Investors

Persons who are interested in investing their funds in an organisation should know about the financial condition of a business unit while making their investment decisions. They are more concerned about future earnings and risk bearing capacity of the organisation which will affect the return to the investors.

(iii) Customers

Customers who buy and use the products and services of business enterprises are interested in knowing the details of the products and the prices charged to them. They are interested in knowing the stability and profitability of an enterprise to ensure continued supply of the products or services by the enterprise.

(iv) Tax authorities and other regulatory bodies

Accounting information helps the tax authorities in computing income tax and taxes on goods and services and other taxes to be collected from business units. Other regulatory bodies also require information about revenues, expenses and other financial aspects of business to ensure that the enterprises comply with statutory requirements.

(v) Government

The scarce resources of the country are used by business enterprises. Information about performance of business units in different industries helps the government in policy formulation for development of trade and industry, allocation of scarce resources, grant of subsidy, etc. Government also administers prices of certain commodities. In such cases, government agencies have to ensure that the guidelines for pricing are followed.

(vi) Researchers

Researchers to carry out their research can use accounting information and make use of the published financial statements for analysis and evaluation.

(vii) General public

From accounting information, the general public at large can get a view of the earning capacity and stability of the enterprise as well as the social responsibility measures undertaken by the enterprise particularly in its area of operation and also the employment opportunities provided to the local people.
