

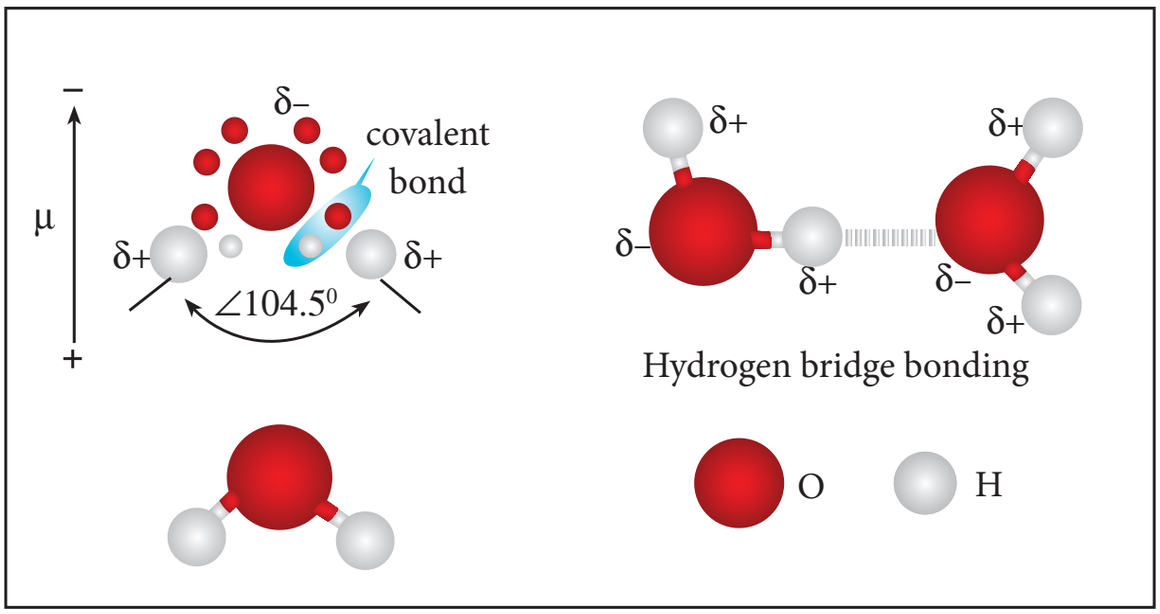

Figure 4.7 (b) Hydrogen bonding in water

Hydrogen bond occurs not only in simple molecules but also in complex biomolecules such as proteins, and they are crucial for biological processes. For example, hydrogen bonds play an important role in the structure of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA), since they hold together the two helical nucleic acid chains (strands).

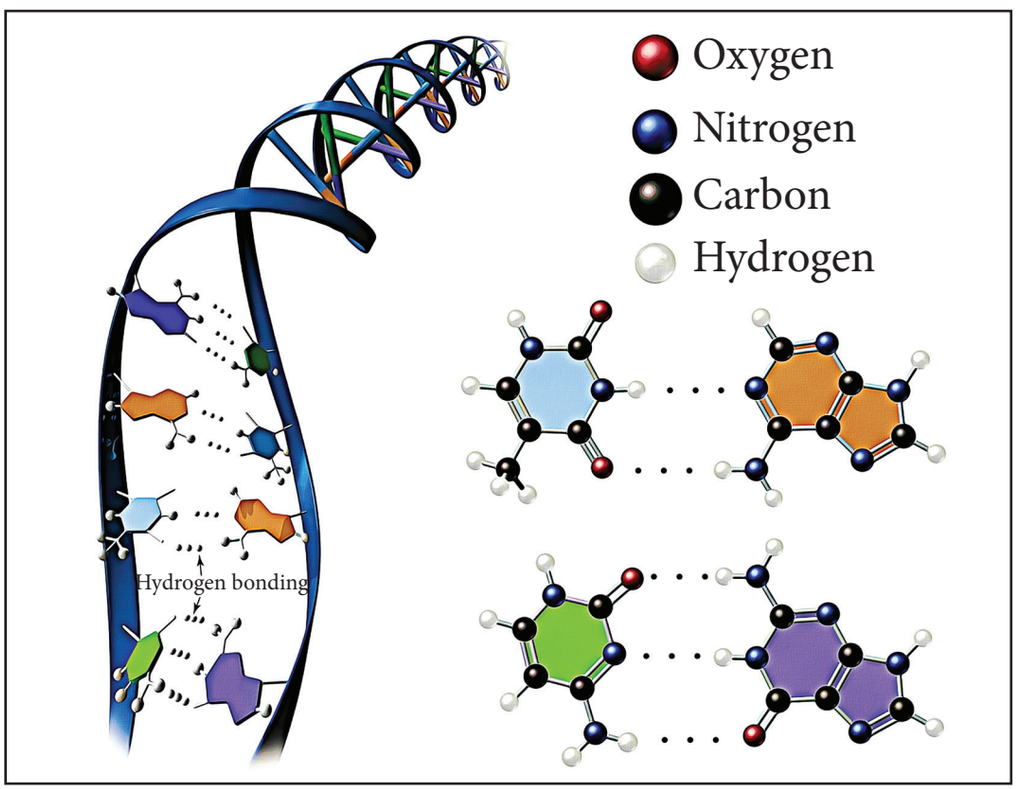

Figure 4.8 Hydrogen bonding in DNA molecules

11th Std Chemistry 100-124.indd 115 23-12-2021 15:14:26