"Rights are powers necessary for the fulfilment of man's vocation as a moral being..." T.H. Green

Do you know about rights?

They are the common claims of the people which every cultures society recognizes as essential claims for their development and which are therefore enforced by the state.

Features

- Rights are important for the societal development.
- They are available to all the people irrespective of caste, creed, race or gender bias.
- Rights are duties are interrelated to each other. "No duties, no rights."
- Rights are justiciable.
- It is the duty of the state to protect the rights of the people.

Different types of Rights.

i. Natural Rights

These rights are parts of human nature and reason. Political theory explains that an individual has certain basic rights and the government cannot deny these rights.

ii. Moral Rights

Moral rights include rules of good conduct, courtesy and moral behaviour. Moral Rights include rules of good conduct, courtesy and of moral behaviour and stand for moral perfection of the people.

iii. Legal Rights

Legal rights are equally available to all the citizens and they follow without any discrimination. Legal rights are those which are accepted and enforced by the state. Legal rights are of three types:

- Civil Rights: These are the rights which provide opportunity to each person to lead a civilized social life and that which are protected by the state. Right to life, liberty and equality are civil rights.
- Political Rights: These are the rights by virtue of which the people get a share in the political process. These rights include the right to vote, right to get elected, right to hold public office, etc.
- Economic Rights: These are the rights which provide the economic security to the people.

Legal rights are what the law says there are, insofar as the law is enforced. They gain importance through legislation or decree by a legally authorized authority.

iv. Contractual Rights

These rights originate from the practice of promise – keeping. They apply to particular individuals to whom contractual promises have been made.

v. Human Rights

Human Rights are the rights of highest order. They are protected and supported by international and national laws and treaties. International Human Rights day is celebrated on December 10 in every year.
